Open House Night in Astronomy on Thursday, December 3, 2009 at 7:30 p.m., at 101 Otto Behrend Science Center, hosted by Dr. Roger Knacke, Professor of Physics and Astronomy. The theme will be THE CHRISTMAS STAR. Professor Roger Knacke will discuss what the Star of Bethlehem might have been. Many theories for the star have been proposed—that it was a comet, or a meteor, or an exploding star, or a conjunction of planets. Dr. Knacke will examine the Bible's description of the star, and compare it with astronomical evidence to suggest a plausible explanation. A computer simulation of the skies over Bethlehem more than 2,000 years ago will show what people might have seen and interpreted as a miraculous star.

Admission is free and the event is open to the public. The lecture is intended for a non-technical audience. Astronomical observing from Penn State Behrend's Mehalso Observatory will follow the lecture, weather permitting. For more information, contact the school at 814-898-6105.

No students in grades 8-12 should be in the 6th grade wing before school or after school unless they are interning with a faculty member in that wing.

The December calendars are available in the reception office.
